

A new name in electricity generation

We are Queensland's newest, publicly-owned electricity generation company; to be fuelled by a mix of renewable energy and driven by big ideas and innovation.

Once established, we will facilitate a more dynamic and responsive energy market by using a diverse mix of generation capacity and investment in renewable energy projects to deliver innovative energy solutions for our customers.

CleanCo is shaping the future of Queensland's energy sector by increasing market competition as we transition to more renewable generation capacity.

CleanCo will have a strategic portfolio of low and no-emission power generation assets, including the 570 MW Wivenhoe Power Station and pumped storage hydro facility, the 385 MW Swanbank E gas-fired power station, and the 66 MW Barron Gorge, 86 MW Kareeya and 7 MW Koombooloomba hydro power stations.

We will support Queensland's transition to a renewable energy future by building, owning and operating new renewable generation capacity and facilitating additional investment in renewable energy through contracting arrangements.

We are implementing our business model, establishing core functions and recruiting leading energy sector specialists to drive our establishment.

Our independent Board

On 17 December 2018, we were established as a Government owned corporation and announced the appointment of our independent Board – Jacqui Walters as Chair, and Tracy Dare and Ivor Frischknecht as Directors.

CleanCo's Board will set our strategic direction and guide the creation of CleanCo as a powerful force as Queensland's newest electricity generator.

Experienced interim executive leadership team

Our establishment is being led by an interim team of experienced and passionate professionals with extensive renewable energy sector experience.

Appointed in February 2019, Miles George is interim Chief Executive Officer, Geoff Dutailis Executive General Manager – Transition, and Tanya Mills seconded as Executive General Manager – Energy Markets Implementation. We will soon commence recruitment of a permanent team.
